Work Plan For Play Program

Work as well as play are provided for in a plan Mrs. Helen Wood, Sunset principal, is working out for the Carmel Recreation Program. She has offered to donate her time to conducting the "Carmel Youth Services," a clearing house for those young people who want to do their part in relieving the man power shortage during this war-time summer.

According to her plan, Carmel people who want help for lawn cutting, gardening, painting, repairs, care of small children or similar tasks will be able to find it through her agency at Sunset.

She will have a panel of volunteer workers who will be available to the Red Cross, A.W.V.S., USO, and other service organizations. Rooms will be fitted up at Sunset where the young people can continue their war work they have been doing during the school term, knit for the Red Cross, make scrap books for the USO and posters publicizing the drives. High school girls will sell stamps at a stand down town so that students can continue the regular purchases they have been making at school through the winter.

She will welcome, she said, any suggestions from service organizations or prospective employers as to how the young people can be useful both in volunteer and pay jobs.

The students' willingness was demonstrated this winter, she said, in their excellent work for the Junior Red Cross and their active participation in various drives both at the high school and at Sunset.

Crime a Social Disease, Fenton Tells Local Club

"Crime is a social disease that can be greatly reduced if not erradicated providing we treat it as we treat certain alarming physical diseases," Dr. Norman Fenton said in his talk before the League of Women Voters Monday afternoon at 3:30 in the library at Sunset school.

A member of the Stanford University faculty in the School of Education, head of the Child Guidance Clinic formerly sponsored by the State Welfare Department, he is at present serving as special consultant to the newly created California Youth Authority.

He opened his talk with a comparison of the two public attitudes toward crime: that it is a normal accompaniment of communal life, a philosophy which results in punishment but makes no effort toward prevention, and the "crime is a disease" attitude that is the working principle of the Youth Authority and leads to greater emphasis on prevention.

The Youth Authority has been so recently created that nothing more than its broad principles can be discussed at the present time, he said, as much of the details of the machinery to be set up, have not been worked out.

It deals specifically with the age group between 17 and 25 since records show that 65% of all

Bach Festival Called Off for Duration of War

By DENE DENNY and HAZEL WATROUS

An announcement that will sober and disappoint hundreds of music lovers on the West Coast is reluctantly given out by Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous. The Ninth Annual Carmel Bach Festival will not be held as planned this July, but will have to be deferred until July, 1944, or to such date as Victory sets.

This decision was reached last weekend, after conferences with the Festival committee, the mayor of Carmel, the Realtors had confirmed the judgment as inexorable necessity. The Denny - Watrous Management had gone far in their plans for this year's Festival, having engaged soloists and made arrangements for a weekend program that would equal in excellence the beauty of last year.

However, difficulties of maintaining the high standard of the Festival have steadily mounted. Depletion of the ensemble and uncertainties of many orchestra and choral participants due to war conditions; problems of transportation, food and housing for outside participants during their stay in Carmel have presented steadily growing problems which have reached insoluble proportions. Former resources of housing are not all available this year when more facilities than ever before would be required.

The fact that the Carmel Bach Festival is not only a musical but a spiritual experience, enriching and exalting to those who participate and share in it, whether as performers or audience, has made its producing managers and the Festival committee feel that

Apply at CD Office Wed. for Canning Sugar

Next Wednesday and every Wednesday thereafter through the season Carmel housewives will be able to apply for canning sugar at the C.D. office in city hall between the hours of 10 to 4, Lloyd Weer, Carmel member of the food panel, announced yesterday.

The allotment this year is to be increased to 25 pounds of sugar for each member of the family. Of this, five pounds per individual may be used for jams, jellies and preserves.

There will also be a change in procedure by the board in handling the sugar allotments as a coupon book will be issued to the applicant. When the coupons are "spent" at the grocers', War Ration Book No. 1 must be shown. War Ration Book 1 for each person for whom the canning sugar is bought must be presented when the written application is made for the sugar at the C.D. office. The applicant must also state the number of quarts or pounds of finished fruit to be put up, and the amount to be used in jams and jellies.

Seals Warn of Danger Season At Carmel Beach

A group of playful young seals, somersaulting in the water and leaping and gliding in on the waves as they moved up Carmel beach late Monday afternoon called the attention of several people along shore to the fact that the beach is again forming sloughs and that the rip currents are therefore strong and frequent.

The young seals seemed to cavort with special and extra energies whenever the group came abreast of one of the many rips, but playing in rips is not for human beings and people who do not yet know how to recognize them are cautioned to go carefully for a while, particularly where water little over waist-deep extends out quite a ways before reaching where the waves comb, as this is where a big wave, in running back off, can start a rip of dangerous clutch and power.—Malcolm Whitman.

Realtors Urge Summer Visitors To Stay Away

Due to the critical housing situation in Carmel, the Real Estate Brokers feel it is necessary to discourage all summer vacationists for this coming season, and possibly for the duration of the war. Any available houses should be made available for the Army and Navy families.

Rentals should be placed on an annual monthly basis, rather than on a seasonal basis as has been the practice in the past.

To avoid OPA rent control, owners of rental properties will have to keep rents reasonable, otherwise there is a strong possibility that all rents will be frozen as they existed on March 1, 1942—and be controlled for the duration of the war.

It is a patriotic duty and sound business judgment for all owners

RECIPROCAL TRADE AGREEMENTS

"If the trade agreements are not passed or IF THEY ARE RESTRICTED IN ANY MANNER the other nations will see in that fact a confirmation of their worst fears of what this country will do after the war," Dr. Olive Swezy said in an address to the Women's Democratic Club Friday afternoon. The script of her talk is printed on the feature page of this issue of the Pine Cone.

Dr. Swezy, who recently came from Berkeley to make her home in Carmel, was for a number of years a research associate in zoology and biology at the University of California. Her topic is timely, as renewal of the reciprocal trade agreements will soon be up before Congress for consideration. We hope to print other views on the subject in forthcoming issues.

Monroe, 'Missing' Since Bataan, Is Reported Alive

Word of his son, Robert Hayes Monroe, reported missing on May 19, 1941, reached Mr. Scott James Monroe of Carmel Valley on Monday of this week. It came from Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, Chief of the Naval Personnel, and reported "with pleasure" the fact that a brief message, transmitted by the International Red Cross from Tokyo, via Geneva, Switzerland, to Washington, D. C. confirmed the personnel bureau's previous hope that Chief Machinist's Mate Robert Monroe was still alive. He has been located among the prisoners taken by the Japanese when the Manila Bay Area capitulated.

Chief Machinist's Mate Monroe, one of the 72 volunteers under Lt. John D. Bulkeley in the famous P. T. Mosquito Boat Squadron No. 3—the "expendables" who made history by their exploits before the fall of Bataan, served on the ill-fated Boat 31, under Lt. De Long. It will be recalled that Boat 31 entered Subic Bay, sank a Japanese ship and was lost. Some of the crew escaped on a rubber raft which floated close to shore where it was destroyed and three of the number killed by enemy fire. The other crew members, among them Robert Monroe, swam to land and reported to army headquarters, since there were no longer any navy headquarters on the island.

The last word of his son to reach Scott James Monroe until this week was the announcement from the Navy Department that he had been "performing his duty in the service of his country in the Manila Bay Area when that station capitulated" and that he would "be carried on the records of the Navy Department as missing pending further information."

This week, thanks to the humane services of the International Red Cross, Scott James Monroe knows that his son is alive, and that a way will be found to communicate with him.

Standard Show Aids Artists to Sell Bonds

Carmel was treated to a street show and Artists for Victory are credited with selling $15,206.25 worth of War Bonds Tuesday afternoon when the Standard Oil company's entertainment unit parked in front of the Bank of Carmel and went into action with a marimba, an electric organ, a number of local volunteer musicians, and pretty girls selling stamps.

Representing Artists for Victory in the bond sale were Pat Cunningham, director of the Carmel Art Institute, Loa Lloyd, Libby Cass and Mrs. Abbott. Fred Godwin represented the Carmel Bond Committee.

The unit, a truck and trailer equipped with marimba and electric organ, was donated by the Standard Oil company to the Treasury Department for bond selling purposes. It has traveled 15,000 miles and sold eight million stamps in the past ten months. Henry Murtagh, well known Pacific coast musician, is master of ceremonies and organist. Sam Stukey was released from Paramount Studios to handle the sound effects. Two attractive girls sell the stamps, play the marimba and put on a flag act.

The unit, which also visited Pacific Grove and Monterey earlier in the week and sold bonds under the auspices of the A.W.V.S., was brought here by O. L. Davis, district manager for the company.

Kate McLeod, New Carmel Resident, Recalls San Francisco in the 80's, Foreign Embassies, Personalities

By IRENE ALEXANDER

In the corner room on the lower floor at La Playa Hotel—a room bright with afternoon sunshine and the sparkle of sea, a diminutive and sprightly old lady sits among the memories of an exceptionally rich life and gives delight to the many friends who seek her out.

In the days when her attractive fluff of white hair was chestnut, and it was her custom to begin each day with a gallop through Golden Gate Park and a dip in the ocean, Kate Pohli McLeod was noted for her adaptations and translations of German drama and the readings which she gave for many years at the St. Francis Hotel, the Fairmont and the International House on the Berkeley campus. Always a cosmopolitan, there is scarcely a country in which she has not lived and traveled extensively; among her friends and acquaintances are numbered many of the great and famous. The walls of her room are lively with faces from the past—and it is characteristic of her that in place of honor among her likenesses of artists and ambassadors, records of scenes among which she has lived vividly, the photographs of family—the son in his uniform of naval gunner — there is the treasured picture of Hedwig, the maid who served her loyally for 34 years.

Kate Pohli McLeod was born in Berlin, daughter of the American consul to that city, and spent her early years in the villa built by Giacomo Meyerbeer, the composer, its rambling gardens now a portion of the Tiergarten. She was educated in the boarding schools of Germany, France and Switzer-

Appreciative Audience Enjoys Bundles Concert

By DAVID MARRS

The benefit recital for Bundles-United last Sautrday was in every way a successful event. The audience was large and very appreciative of the sincerity and musicianship of the artists, Marjorie Legge Wurzmann and Noel Sullivan. It was very good indeed to hear these friends of ours again making music in public which they do only too rarely. At this time they were both in a reverent mood.

Marjorie Wurzmann emerged victorious in her struggle with a tiny piano which just had no big tone. How she managed to get some of the excellent effects in the modern group was amazing. Initiating the reverential mood was the Bach Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring. The Schubert Impromptu which followed was delicately done. It was the Chopin Nocturne and Prelude, however, which suffered most from the inadequacy of the instrument. There must be big full rich tone in a Chopin nocturne. Nevertheless the musicianship was excellent.

In her second group Mrs. Wurzmann played best. The Prelude of Debussy was full of gentle breezes and was very lovely. Ravels' Fountain could have splashed more. The Scriabin Etudes were excellent, in particular the dramatic "Patetico." Encores extremely well done were the Little White Donkey by Ibert and the A Major Intermezzo of Brahms.

Noel Sullivan was in fine voice. There is a ring of sadness in all that Mr. Sullivan does combined with utmost sincerity. The opening group was devout in character ending with Easter Hymn to the Virgin by Bridge, a number full of religious exultation. Mr. Sullivan's second group was his best. Eili, Eili, was powerfully dramatic. Slow, Horses, Slow trotted along to a charming jingle of an accompaniment. La Douce Paix was beautifully done.

The last group of Mr. Sullivan was lightened somewhat by Oh, That We Two Were Maying by Nevin and A Nursery Rhyme by Hely-Hutchinson. The encores requested were Far Apart by Schneider and My Lord, What a Mornin', a negro spiritual.

Mr. Sullivan's accompanist was Gerita Hanna, a pianist of excellence and as sensitive an accompanist as you could find. She was able to highly enrich each song with her musical vitality.

The program was a bit too long and should have contained a few cheering songs but it was a fine concert. Carmel owes a debt of gratitude to these generous artists for their contribution to a good cause and their exhibition of the greatest of morale-builders, music.

F. Howells Named Deputy Coroner

Frank E. Howells, who several weeks ago bought the Freeman-Rancadore mortuary in Monterey, was appointed deputy coroner for this district Tuesday by J. A. Cornett.

Sal Rancadore, one of the former owners, is now a flying instructor in Las Vegas. Jim Freeman, the other, has joined his brother in the mortuary business in Oakland.

Howell came to Monterey from Woodlake in San Joaquin Valley where he was engaged in the same business, mayor of the town and at one time coroner.

Mrs. Howell will assist him in his work in Monterey until the return of his two sons, Robert and Norman who are in the armed forces.

Lial's Move for More Space, Music Is on the March

By LYNDA SARGENT

Hautboy and ocarina, cithern and cymbals, Margaret Lial has moved her shop again.

In these days, when many people who trade conceal themselves behind half-closed doors hoping against customers, the business of vending music grows; it is as wide as an air wave and as deep as God's cellar. So Lial's Music Shop has taken over the space directly adjacent to its old stand on Alvarado street, only a deeper and wider space.

Miss Lial says they are sending to her for records from Los Angeles and other foreign ports, for she has them, or she can get them. On the bright coverings of the record books displayed in her bright new windows are the far-fetched faces of Toscannini and Borrah Minevitch; and the wide open spaces between Palestrina and Duke Ellington are filled with all the variegated musical foliages of the centuries.

Or perhaps a piano or piccolo is your dish, with music in sheets. The Fort Ord Panorama the other day advised buying the boys small instruments — mouth organs and ocarinas and such — so they may have music wherever they go. Maybe a little Pied Piper's pipe to lure the mottled men of Mr. Kesselring into the Mediterranean.

We are delighted beyond words to tell that music itself is in such fine case. A sickle moon and the evening star on the horizon, and the Emperor concerto in the bowels of a submarine — these, also, are signs of the times.

Teachers Resign, New Ones Hired At Board Meeting

Tuesday night the school board members were occupied largely with acepting resignations of Carmel teachers and hiring new instructors to take their place, an order of business that has headed the list for the school board meetings for the past several months.

Mrs. Katherine French was elected to start at Sunset with the opening of the fall term. At present a teacher in the Monterey primary schools with a home at the Monterey Country Club, Mrs. French is well known in Carmel where she has been active in dramatics. Her joining the Sunset faculty makes it possible to eliminate the half grade system by which the overflow from two grades were taught in combination.

A newcomer, Miss Gale Marhorfke, is to take over the work of Miss Muriel Nevin and Mrs. Helen Poulsen in the home economic departments of both Sunset and the high school next fall. The duties of the high school department will be lightened by the appointment of a cafeteria manager so that Miss Marhorfke can devote herself exclusively to teaching in the two schools. Mrs. Helen Poulsen, the Sunset home economics teacher is resigning her position to enter Red Cross Work. Miss Muriel Nevin, high school home economics teacher, has asked to be released because of the illness of her mother.

Miss Marhorfke, at present finishing her studies at Oregon State, is a resident of Berkeley, but has lived on the Monterey Peninsula and has a number of friends here.

Clayton Schuttish, shop instructor at the high school, offered his resignation, as he intends to go to Oakland to enter war work. Miss Annie Edlen also resigned. Her work as English and Dramatics teacher at the high school will be taken over by Miss Alberta Beeson, at present a teacher at the San Mateo high school, whose appointment was ratified by the school board several weeks ago.

Lieutenant General Joseph Stilwell, Commander of Far East Forces, Home on Leave and---Mows the Lawn

There's a new aviary in the garden of the Stilwell home on Carmel Point. On Sunday, the last full day of Lieutenant General Joseph Stilwell's visit with his family here, he helped his young son Ben put the finishing touches on its building, and together they installed the birds. There was a patch of lawn, too, which according to daughter Winifred, had gotten a bit out of hand during the months since her father's departure to assume command of the American forces in the Far East. General Stilwell mowed that.

In the four days between Wednesday evening, May 5, when General and Mrs. Stilwell arrived by plane from Washington, D. C., following his conferences with President Roosevelt, and the early hours of last Monday, when a plane again whisked the two of them back to Washington, where Mrs. Stilwell will remain with her husband until he returns to his post in China, General Stilwell found time to do a very thoughtful and friendly act. On Thursday afternoon he assembled the wives of Major D. C. Cleaves, Brigadier General William Powell, Colonel Robert Williams, Brigadier General Thomas S. Arms, Major Paul L. Jones, Brigadier General Thomas Hearn, as well as his own eldest daughter, Nancy, the wife of Lieutenant Colonel E. F. Easterbrook, and gave them personal word of their husbands, all officers at present under his command in India or in China. By one of those strange coincidences, Mrs. Arms had that same morning received a letter from Brigadier General Arms, dated 19 days earlier, in which he spoke of just having talked with General Stilwell.

His old post at Fort Ord also received a visit from the general on Thursday, and he inspected with particular interest the nearly completed soldiers' club building—designed to house activities which he inaugurated and sponsored so enthusiastically during his command there.

Present in Carmel to greet the general and hear news of the elder Stilwell son, Lieutenant Colonel Joseph W., Jr., now serving with his father in China, were two daughters, a son and the two grandchildren, Johnny and Nancy Easterbrook. Miss Alison Stilwell, now in the East exhibiting her paintings and lecturing under the auspices of United China Relief, spent three days with her parents in Washington, D. C., returning to New York in time for the opening of her exhibit at the G. T. Loo Galleries, scheduled to continue through May 20. Plans are in progress for a Washington exhibit in the near future — but first it will be necessary for Miss Stilwell to take time off and paint more of her distinctive water colors in the Chinese manner, since every painting in her exhibit marked for sale has already found a purchaser—an unusual record for a young artist.

When questioned regarding some statement from Mrs. Stilwell on her husband's Carmel visit, her daughters reported, "Oh, mother just went around beaming!"

Mattos Shows Talent In M.A.C. Concert

By BESSIE BOYD FRASER

The piano playing of Eddie Mattos Sunday afternoon at the Carmel high school for the Musical Art Society and guests, was an inspiration for all who heard him. In spite of the fact that Uncle Sam has first claim on his time, he manages to practice now and then. He has talent and technique. He is also a musician who plays with feeling and understanding.

He didn't rattle off Mozart, Brahms and Debussy all in the same tone and style.

The Mozart Variations in A Major opened his program. His interpretation of Mozart was authentic with nice tone shading and clean scale passages.

Followed three Brahms Capriccios. His pedaling in No. 5 was a little blurred and octaves not quite clean, but he had "something to say" for Brahms and himself.

No. 2 was played with expression and fine tone, crisp staccato and nice shading. No. 8 was in excellent style, with sufficient power and a big climax.

Franck's beautiful Prelude, Choral and Fugue were well done. He produced a clean singing tone in the Fugue.

"Polka" and "Lilacs" by Rachmaninoff were interesting and added variety and contrast to the program. Three Debussy numbers and one encore concluded Mattos' recital.

The Cypress Singers under the baton of Rue aMnhire gave two groups of songs. Their attack was good and they were best in the lullaby type of song. They brought out the humor of Three Little Maids. However, they are not equipped for dramatic works and should avoid complicated syncopation as found in Latin rythms. Carol Moore Turner was the accompanist.

land, and spent a year at school in Silesia.

She was sixteen when she came to San Francisco, in 1883, and remembers well the impression made upon her by the city of that day. With her father and brother, she rode up California street in a horse drawn hack, and accustomed as she had been to living in huge old-world villas and chateaux, she immediately assumed that her destination was the imposing Stanford mansion atop the hill. The conventional wooden frame house, with its bay window and narrow garden on McAllister street which turned out to be her new home, seemed impossibly drab and cramped at first.

Life in San Francisco brought many compensations, however; and chief among them were the Sunday horseback rides to the old Cliff House.

It was in Sonoma, in a garden where ladies in sweeping skirts and gentlemen in sports attire with high, stiff collars, sedately played croquet under the drifting almond blossoms, that she met Emil Pohli, a native of Zurich, later to serve for many years as head of the Swiss consulate in San Francisco.

They were married in the Unitarian Church of San Francisco, and after all these years she remembers with an indulgent chuckle, her disappointment over the fact that Dr. Stebbins, who officiated, completely filled the little temple of bamboo, with its floral bells, which she, with her lifelong passion for flowers, had planned as a setting for the bride and groom.

Gavin McNab was clerk in those days at the Occidental Hotel, where the wedding reception was given. Those were the days, too, when it was the thing to take horse and buggy over to Mill Valley and breakfast at the Hotel Blithedale.

Two sons were born of her happy marriage with the Swiss consul: Ramon and Emil, Jr. Their home, designed by Eugene Fritz, stood with its stables and gardens on Delmar street, and here she began to give her dramatic readings, later, as their popularity grew, taking a partner, Ernst Wilhelmy.

In 1914, Mr. Pohli was sent by President Wilson on a diplomatic mission to Switzerland, Italy and France, to arrange for the exhibits of those countries in the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. His wife accompanied him, and in the course of the trip they visited the famous Suchard Chocolate factories, and the home of many another interesting product. Then, on the boat coming home, word reached them that the first shot of the World War had been fired at Serajevo.

When Ritter, the Swiss ambassador, came to San Francisco as a guest of its Swiss-born citizens, Mr. Pohli and his wife served as their official hosts, and Kate Pohli McLeod says that one of her childhood dreams was fulfilled when she found herself riding in the car occupied by Mrs. Ritter and the wife of Mayor Rolph, preceded by a band and followed by cavalry.

They were weekend guests in the home of Mrs. Phoebe Hearst at Pleasanton on this occasion, and part of the entertainment afforded her feminine guests by the hostess was a tour of her extensive wardrobe, housed in a vast room, lined with glass doors. There was another room, too, which gave an interesting sidelight on the character of Mrs. Hearst. This she called her Christmas room, and from floor to ceiling it was lined with drawers. On January first of each year, Mrs. Hearst began her purchase of articles which she considered beautiful and fitting for gifts. These she stored away in labeled drawers, ready for December wrapping and mailing.

After the death of Emil Pohli, his widow married Robert McLeod, the son of the sculptor whose work adorns the cathedral doors in Cork. Mr. McLeod was manager of Balfour and Guthrie in San Francisco and a member of the Bohemian Club; among their friends were numbered such personages as John McLaren, head of the Golden Gate Park, and Redfern Mason.

It was Redfern Mason who suggested to Mrs. McLeod in 1926, following the death of her second husband, that she go abroad as foreign correspondent for the Examiner. She set forth in 1927, armed with credentials from Cordell Hull, Harold Ickes, the minister of education, the secretary of state, the bishop and Mayor Rolph, and from then until 1938, there was almost constant traveling for her.

To be sure, her original plans were changed almost at once. As Examiner representative, she wrote a series of three articles on the Fete de Vigneron, the wine festival held every twenty-five years in Switzerland. From the little town of Merano, where she was staying when she determined to attend the festival, the road to her destination was impassible for cars. Nothing daunted, she hired a horse and groom, and the result of her articles was a contract with the California Grapegrower, a monthly magazine devoted to viticulture. In the years during which she explored Europe, reporting on grape culture, Mrs. Pohli McLeod, as she signed herself, produced a series of outstanding articles: Grape-Growing in Sicily; A Visit to the Chianti District; English Hot - House Grapes; The Vineyards of the Rhine; Viticulture in Austria; Viticulture in Czechoslovakia, A Visit to the Cote d'Or, Viticulture in the Tyrol—to mention a few of the provocative results of her research. Her travels took her to most of the vineyards and cellars of Europe. They took her also to most of the capital cities of Europe — to Rome, where she talked with Mussolini; to Copenhagen, where she was entertained for a week by our ambassador, Ruth Bryan Owen.

Life has been a happy and interesting pageant for Kate Pohli McLeod, and that interest does not flag. It has only been during the last two years that she abandoned her horseback riding and swimming. And last year she enrolled as a special student at the University of California, studying such subjects as philosophy, Italian history, philology and the drama.

SEVENTH GRADE GOES TO HIGH SCHOOL

The eighth grade students at the high school were hosts to the Sunset seventh grades Wednesday morning, giving them a taste of what life will be like when they go to school up on the hill next fall.

The visitors joined their hosts during the gymnasium period, then were shown over the grounds and buildings for the remainder of the morning. They left with an invitation to attend the eighth grade ball May 22.

Remember the birthday saying "Monday's child is fair of face, Tuesday's child is full of grace, etc."? At Merle's Treasure Chest they have the seven "Birthday Children" made of domestic ceramic ware, with the airy grace of Dresden china and a figure for each day of the week. Only seven inches high, they stand daintily in the window for passersby to see.

Inside one gets a glimpse of the new Royal Dalton figures and clever Toby jugs, collector's items these, and superceded only by the magnificent pair of antique French bisque figurines, a shepherd and shepherdess 20 inches high, exquisitely cast and tinted.

Last Chance for Part in Carmel Show, The Women

Rehearsals for "The Women," Clare Boothe Luce's famous comedy satire, are progressing satisfactorily at the Playhouse, where the play will be performed on the afternoons and evenings of May 29 and 30.

Director Edward Kuster announces that there are several short colorful roles still unfilled in the cast of forty-five women and girls required by the script, and he urges that both old Carmelites and newcomers interested in community theater lend a hand toward this first production of the season.

In addition to the short sustained roles still open there are a few indispensable "bit" parts, requiring only a few rehearsals, that are urgently needed to round out what promises to be one of the most amusing productions presented here in years.

Concoct Show for Wash Rag Collection

An appeal through the Junior Red Cross came to Sunset school for washrags for use in the soldier hospitals in Alaska so Mrs. Walter Barry's seventh grade whipped up a show with admission charge of one washrag per child, two per adult and collected 450.

The show, presented in Sunset Auditorium Tuesday afternoon, was a variety performance presided over by Murray White as master of ceremonies. It consisted of the recital of three poems by the entire class, a piano solo by DuVal Roberts, a Russian dance by Michael Monahan and Curtis Gorham, piano number by Roland Vandenberg, Pat Dormody playing an accordion solo with a grand finale, Casey at the Bat, Owen Greenan reciting the poem, Rod Dewar enacting the part of the pitcher, Roland Van der Berg the catcher, Jimmy Campbell, the umpire, Michael Monahan, Casey, and the rest of the class, the anguished spectators to the tragedy of Mudville.

A generous turn-out of parents helped swell the wash-rag "gate."

Pressure Cooker Demonstration at Sunset Thursday

By SHANE RYAN

Miss Anne Olson, Home Demonstration Agent for Monterey County, will be at Sunset School on the afternoon of Thursday, May 20, to test and demonstrate the use of pressure cookers.

From one o'clock to three, Miss Olsen will test cookers in the Foods Room of Sunset School and from three to five, she will demonstrate the use of the cookers in the cafeteria.

This is most important. Victory gardens are already producing an excess of vegetables and it would be a great pity to let any of this necessary food go to waste. On the other hand, it is dangerous to try to can them without knowing the proper method. Botulism is an ever-present hazard in home-canned foods and particularly in California. An understanding of the modern methods eliminates this danger.

Pressure cookers unless properly tested are worse than useless. They should be tested at least once a year. Just recently the owner of a pressure cooker in Carmel took it to Monterey to be tested and found it off more than five pounds. This is dangerous business.

We are constantly being warned by Washington to conserve foods against future shortage. It is imperative that all vegetables and fruits in excess of current use be canned for use next year. All owners of pressure cookers please bring them to the Sunset school on Thursday, May 20, from 1 to 3 in the afternoon — bring the entire cooker, not just the gauge—and remain for the demonstration of the proper methods of using them from 3 to 5 o'clock.

Anne Olson Warns Canners Against Botulism Outbreak

By ANNE OLSON
Home Demonstration Agent

Monterey County will have outbreaks og botulism in 1943 and 1944 if housewives continue to can non-acid vegetables without using pressure cookers.

With peas now available at very low cost, there has been a flurry of home canning of peas in ovens, in hot water bath, and even by the open kettle method. All of these methods are unsafe. Peas should not be canned unless a pressure cooker with an accurate gauge is used and directions for processing are carefully followed.

If no pressure cooker is available, peas should not be canned. As a matter of fact, dehydrated peas taste better than canned peas and if proprely done are as high in food value as canned peas.

Dehydrators can be made at very small cost and can be used for drying all vegetables and fruits as they become available.

It may be dim-out but it can be bright in, especially at the windows, with gay new draperies. And that's most important now. For we're spending more hours at home, and it's home we want to go to when we've put in our day's war-work. Revitalizing the home decorations now is like rededicating the home. Besides making it more cheerful, slip covers can make upholstered furniture more comfortable and add years to its use.

Many rooms can be made more friendly, more homey by selecting one drapery pattern and carrying it throughout the room; put it at the windows, on the furniture, use it for spreads, and the like.

You can match or mix your color scheme and achieve many striking effects by contrast in fabrics. To this end, we have cretonnes, repps, gabardines, artillery cloth, crashes, Ruff-tex, glazed chintz, and Glo-Sheen sateens.

Whatever the effect you wish to achieve, you'll find the material in stripes, solid colors, chevron patterns, all-over patterns and bold column prints.

The Reciprocal Trade Agreements

By OLIVE SWEZY

During the period between 1920 and 1930, bankers in this country loaned great sums of money to the war-torn countries of Europe to rebuild their industries. In 1922 Congress passed the Fordner-McCumber Tariff Act and in 1930 the Smoot-Hawley Act which raised still higher the tariffs on goods from these countries. This country was the largest and richest market and when these countries were shut out from it, disaster followed. This government insisted on the collection of war debts from these same countries, while at the same time it shut out the products which represented the only means by which these countries could repay their debts. The results are called "the tragedy of 1930," and was one of the direct causes leading to the present war. These other countries had to raise tariff walls and international trade almost ceased.

A world-wide panic resulted; the financial collapse of Austria followed, then the financial collapse of Germany; England went off the gold standard, the bank panic struck the USA, and totalitarianism arose in Germany. For all of these things our bankers and tariff builders had a large share of blame.

Then came the New Deal and Hitler himself.

Of all the many measures passed by the New Deal, the Reciprocal Trade Agreement Act was probably the most important for the foreign relations of this country. But, so strongly entrenched have both tariffs and isolation become in this country, it is probable that without the panic of that period, these agreements could never have been passed by Congress.

Cordell Hull believed that the country could not possibly endure on its economic foundations unless the free flow of international trade was made possible. Huge surpluses of corn and wheat and other products could not be sold abroad unless the road was widened so that the traffic flowed in both directions. Foreign trade is not a one-way road. Other countries cannot buy our products unless we buy theirs and thus furnish them with dollar exchange with which to pay for our goods.

The trade agreements authorized the President to negotiate agreements with other countries which reduce the tariff on certain products, control quotas, rate of exchange and other items essential to foreign trade. The President's authority is hedged about with restrictions, the most important of which are requirements for public notice and hearings, tariff reductions not to fall below 50%, and reductions shall apply, on a most-favored-nation basis, to goods of the same sort from all friendly foreign nations. The Act was passed in June, 1934, renewed in 1937 and again in 1940 and now comes up for its third renewal.

In 1940, about 60% of our foreign trade was carried on under these agreements which had then been made with 20 countries. Some were with northern countries, like Canada, Sweden, Finland, from which forest products were obtained; others were with highly industrialized countries, like Britain, France, Belgium, for manufactured products, and eleven Latin-American countries for tropical products. Up to this time, the government had reduced tariffs on more than 1,000 items of foreign imports, which covered only 15% of our total imports. The other 20 countries had at the same time granted concessions which totalled more than 55% of their own imports. This difference between 15% and 55% plainly shows that this country was not getting the smaller end of the bargain, in spite of the fact that, as the richest and largest country, it could well afford to grant concessions to smaller and poorer countries.

Statistics compiled by government experts show that these other countries had, between 1934 and 1940, greatly increased their imports from this country, some, as Belgium, by as much as 81%, while their imports from other countries had increased only a fraction of that per cent. Canada imported 42% more during the same period, while its imports from other countries gained 22%.

The same thing was true of the USA. During the years 1936-38, this country's exports to other countries with whom we had trade agreements, showed an increase of 61.2%, while the exports to countries without these agreements had increased only 37%.

Under the trade agreements Cuba has doubled its imports from this country, which were valued at $89,000,000 in 1938. It is the second most important market for our lard and it reduced the duty on this from 9.6 to a pound to 1.5 a pound, a substantial concession for American livestock growers.

The British Commonwealth in 1937 purchased more than half of our total lard exports, and removed the 10% duty on it under the trade agreements and established a liberal quota on hams. These figures are significant when we remember the hue and cry against granting any concessions to Argentina in the matter of its meat products.

All of the 30 countries now holding trade agreements with us have granted concessions on a wide range of goods, including iron and steel semi-manufactured articles, automotive articles, electrical apparatus, agricultural and business machinery, rubber products, chemicals, paints, hides, and leather goods, certain textiles and various specialty goods. These concessions have increased exports from this country, provided more employment and thus increased the prosperity of the country as a whole.

The opposition groups which are fighting the trade agreements are mainly old-line Republicans, certain agricultural, livestock and mining interests, and those of both parties who hate Roosevelt more than they love their country. The agricultural group is composed of large-scale growers or combines and bankers, dealing in such things as cotton, sugar and tobacco. These, along with livestock growers and mining interests, especially copper, zinc and oil, represent the producers of raw materials. Such raw materials are being increasingly produced in other parts of the world and are becoming competitors on the international market with our products. The burden of the criticism of these groups is that these nations with a lower living standard than our own can produce these things cheaper and thus we cannot compete with them. But these products are already competing with ours on the world markets and high tariffs on our part will do nothing to prevent it and will lose these markets for our own producers.

The opposition has followed the same pattern each time the agreements have come up for renewal. They have tried to make these agreements contingent on approval of two-thirds of the Senate, which is a device to emasculate them. The familiar "log rolling" of pressure groups in the Senate would make any agreement on an important commodity practically impossible. Passage of the Act with this amendment would only serve notice on the rest of the world that this country was retiring behind its Maginot Line of tariff walls and that they must not expect the "free access of raw materials" promised by the Atlantic Charter to be a flow from this country except under heavy restrictions.

The trade agreements with the nations of Central and South America were foundation stones in building the Good Neighbor Policy and are equally important for its continuance.

POETRY

THE SPANISH ORPHEUS

Sometimes in quietude and all alone
I seek the comfort of a fireside chair
To hear the Sarasate GYPSY AIR,
And marvel at its ghostly, plaintive tone
Like winter winds that sigh through naked trees.
And in the weirdness of its yearning strain
I feel the melancholy soul of Spain
That even dancing feet cannot appease.
There is no wonder like its shimmering sound;
No ecstacy to match its thrilling scales;
The Muse who would describe it stumbles, fails,
And voiceless, drops mute tears upon the ground.
If Orpheus had known one single bar,
The gates of Hades still would swing ajar!

—ALICE JOSEPHINE WYATT.

A CHILD'S GARDEN

It is not hidden in a lonely spot;
Yet daily we pass by
And know it not.
For we must have his eye
And dream his dream,
Or all will seem
But part of the wayside fields that near us lie.

Yet here are waiting blooms that will not pass
Like blown October leaves, November grass;
And here may rise to beauty—who can tell?—
Flowers of the asphodel.

—CHARLES BALLARD.

CONVALESCENCE

I was busy yesterday
With work to do in the world I know;
Today, my hands lie idle; still—
Accepting warmth from Life's full glow.

Inertia follows all attempt
To claim a view with broader scope;
Supine: I watch the windowed path—
To walk its length—my cherished hope!

—CLOVER MAE CORNELL.

THE SILENCE

Her song was the path of the sun;
Her voice its light.
We turn from the west, and walk
Into the night.

—STAUNTON CALVERT.

REVIEWS

There is still deep-seated fear in these countries of the imperialistic designs of the USA and these agreements have done more than anything else to dispel them. Most of them have suffered from the predatory activities of the oil companies and their lawless methods of exploitation, and are fearful of a return of the days when the marines were sent into their countries on any provocation.

It has been emphasized by the President in recent weeks that these other nations are watching these trade agreements with considerable anxiety. If they are not passed or if they are restricted in any manner, these nations will see in that fact a confirmation of their worst fears of what this country will do after the war. These fears are well-founded: fear that we will again become isolationist, fear we will erect higher tariff walls, fear that we will try to dominate the post-war world, fear that they will be left to work out their own salvation and secure their own peace alone. Fear of American imperialism is deepened by such plans as the Fortune peace plan, which is reflected in such phrases as "we must dominate world trade, we must dominate the airways, we must have the greatest fleet of ships, we must have an Anglo-American police force, WE will be the strongest nation in the world." None of these boastful words sound well in the ears of smaller nations and the rest of the world is made up mainly of smaller nations. Such words are not evidences of international good will so vitally necessary for world peace.

The trade agreements were the first evidences of a willingness on the part of this country to deal fairly and on an equal basis with small nations. To destroy their effects today would put the world back to where it was two decades ago. Without them, imperfect though they are, the Pan-American Good Neighbor Policy, the Atlantic Charter, the United Nations Charter become empty words. These are all based on the same friendly economic relations and especially those which allow for international highways with full and free traffic in all directions. The most significant fact is that unless we are good neighbors with the rest of the world, we will have to be good enemies.

The passage of this Act without restrictions will be the acid test showing whether this country is fit and worthy to cooperate, indeed, whether it CAN cooperate, with the rest of the world in forming a durable peace.

The Good Neighbor Policy is probably the most important foreign policy committment ever made by this government. President Roosevelt, in his speech in Mexico, offered it as the model for the post-war world relations The extension of this policy to countries outside the Americas can only be made by extending the same trade policies to these other nations. The two are so inextricably bound together that trying to extend the one without the other would be futile. The agreements have worked in the past and we have no other methods which we can be sure will work for the future.

ALL CLEAR!

Tojo and Hitler won't like this. ELECTRIC POWER for the building of ships, the making of munitions of war and the production of food for the United Nations, flows unceasingly from our scores of generators in the high mountains. Fighting winter's snow and sleet, wind and rain, our patrols have kept the high voltage lines open and operating. It's their way of beating the Japs and the Huns. They're good soldiers, these seasoned, toughened, expert linemen.

The P·G·and·E· Army

Twelve thousand strong, the men and women employees of this company are carrying on. More than 2100 of their fellow workers already have gone into military service. Those that remain know the serious importance of their task. They know that maintaining unbroken service of gas and electricity to the war industries strengthens the hands of MacArthur in the South Pacific and Eisenhower in North Africa. These utility workers, each one doing his bit of the multitude of prosaic jobs involved in efficient delivery of electric power and fuel gas, are making a magnificent record of accomplishment. They are an army in themselves, always attacking, always on duty. We are proud of them.

Electric Power When and Where Needed

"Long before Pearl Harbor, the Company began its preparations for meeting the anticipated requirements of the nation's rearmament program. We have been able at all times to meet promptly and fully, with an adequate margin for contingencies, the maximum simultaneous demands of almost a million electric customers. The peak power demand during 1942 was about 250,000 horsepower higher than the 1940 maximum, but in the intervening period more than 300,000 horsepower was added to our system through the construction of new plants or under contracts with other producers. We will add another 300,000 horsepower of capacity during 1943 . . . We are doing our utmost to serve our country's war effort."
—President J. B. Black, in Annual Report for 1942.

Betrothal Announced

The engagement of Miss Terry Gustin to Vincent Torras, Jr., was announced Monday by the mother of the bride-to-be, Mrs. Althea Gustin of Pacific Grove. Miss Gustin, a graduate of Monterey high school, made her home formerly in Santa Monica. Vincent Torras, Jr., is the son of Fire Chief and Mrs. Vincent Torras, of Santa Rita and Serra, and was born in Carmel, graduating from Sunset and Carmel high schools, where he was an outstanding track and football athlete, extremely popular among his fellow students. Following his graduation last December, he enlisted in the Merchant Marine, completing his training a month ago in San Francisco. Now he is somewhere at sea in active service and wedding plans are indefinite.

Mack-Bratney Nuptial Plans

A telegram, accompanied by a beautiful bouquet of flowers, arrived for Major and Mrs. Harold Mack on Easter Sunday in Oregon, where Mrs. Mack had gone to visit her husband. It came from their daughter, Miss Patty Mack, and Mr. Walter Bratney, announcing that the romance which began with the first meeting of the popular young couple when Mr. Bratney came to the Peninsula to assume his post with the Western Beef and Provision company of Del Monte, had reached the stage of wedding plans.

These plans are now complete. The ceremony will take place on Thursday, May 20, before an altar among the flowering fruit trees in the gardens of the Hacienda de Los Amigos, the Del Monte home of the Mack family.

The bride-to-be, whose education not only included attendance at school in Switzerland, graduation from the Dominican convent and studies at Stanford, but a year at the School of Fine Arts in San Francisco, is designing the costumes to be worn by herself and her attendants: matron of honor, Mrs. James A. McKellar (the former Suzanne Biven of Honolulu) and bride's maids Mrs. Leland Cagwin of Carmel, Miss Julianne Ford of Stanford and Miss Juana Sundell of Walnut Grove. Not to be outdone by her father, now on active duty at Camp Hathaway, Vancouver, she has decided this will be a wartime wedding, without benefit of satins, silks and laces.

The bride's younger brother, Richard, now a student at the Cate school, will be best man, and ushers include Lt. Jesse Hill, U.S.N., Ensign Frederick Gage and Lt. J. R. Brown.

Major Mack will be on hand to give his daughter in marriage and present also will be Patty's brother, Mr. Harold Mack, Jr., of San Francisco.

Walter Bratney is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Bratney of East Orange, N. J. and a graduate of the University of Washington.

Miss Mack's family is an old and distinguished one in the history of the development of the West. Her great grandfather, the late Louis Gerstle Mack, was at one time a pony express rider, later becoming one of the founders of the Alaska Commercial company. Her grandfather was the late Adolph Mack of San Francisco. Her maternal grandfather was Wilhelm Wiegner, the noted violinist and composer of Hanover, Germany.

Peggy Cluff Weds

Miss Margaret Vance Cluff became the bride of Mr. Webster Street on April 21, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Grace in San Francisco.

Mrs. Street, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cluff, who for many years have owned a summer home here on Carmel Point, has taken a prominent part in Carmel Peninsula life since her childhood. In 1939 she was curator of the Contemporary Art gallery in Monterey. Recently she has made her home in New York. Mr. Street is an attorney associated with the firm of Hudson, Martin and Ferrante in Monterey. He and his bride plan to reside in Carmel and have taken a house at 13th and San Carlos.

House Guests of Mrs. Martin

Mrs. Royden Martin was hostess this weekend to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ogg and Mr. and Mrs. David Severs, all of Palo Alto, the former couple her house guests during their stay in Carmel. David Severs is director of the Stanford Players, whose production of "Charlie's Aunt" was given a performance on Sunday afternoon at the Del Monte Pre-Flight school and another for the Salinas Air Base on Sunday evening. Mrs. Severs, Richard Ogg, professor of chemistry at Stanford University, and Mrs. Ogg, are members of the play cast. On Saturday evening the two couples attended the closing performance at the First Theater in Monterey of "From Rags to Riches," in which their hostess has been starring for the past three months as "Flossie."

Wayfarer Kinderchurch Opens

Eleven tots, ranging in age from six months to six years, spent a contented hour last Sunday between eleven and twelve under the watchful eye of Mrs. Robert E. Cecil, volunteer monitor of the Wayfarer pre-school church, while their parents attended Mother's Day services. This new plan, directed by Mrs. Clay O'Rear, promises to fill a very real need on the part of the congregation — though there was a moment last Sunday when many in the audience, unaware of the sanctuary provided for wrigglers, complete with sandpile and blocks, wondered just what was happening when one parent after another removed a bored infant from church, returning immediately, wreathed in smiles, sans offspring.

It's the date to change your Motor Oil

IT'S AN EASY MISTAKE to make —to think that in driving less, you needn't pay so much attention to your oil. Fact is, you ought to be even more careful!

In your engine, motor oil is still exposed to air-borne dust and other impurities. And though that oil lies idle in the crankcase, partially burned fuel particles constantly promote oil deterioration.

Also, with today's short trips your engine doesn't get hot enough to vaporize water formed by combustion and condensation. This water further contaminates your oil.

So follow the safe new rule. Have your Shellman or Shellady change your oil every time you go to a new coupon number. That's every two months. Then you're on the safe side, and probably won't have to add a drop between drains.

"CARE FOR YOUR CAR FOR YOUR COUNTRY"

Have your car given a complete Shellubrication job at the same time! Besides lubrication, it includes checking battery, radiator, fan belt, spark plugs; cleaning windows and polishing chrome.

Lt. Leslie Home on Leave

Lieutenant Edgar Leslie, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Leslie of Carmel, arrived last Fiday on a fifteen day leave to visit his family and his bride, the former Betty Bucklen, who has been making her home here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Bucklen since the young couple's marriage in Stockton on Febuary 5. Lt. Leslie's duties as a flier in the Air Transport Command have taken him in the meanwhile from Stockton to St. Joe, Missouri, thence to La Guardia Field, New York. Following his present leave, he will report for duty in Michigan. Happy as this young flier is to be in Carmel, he considers airplanes less of a risk than automobiles—in this village. Fifteen minutes after his arrival, he spied a friend, Warren Knapp, doing last minute errands prior to his departure for camp in Florida. Hastily parking his car, he ran to greet his pal, and when he returned a few minutes later, he was welcomed by a ticket for traffic violation. He reports that between now and next Tuesday, when his holiday is over, he is driving very carefully indeed.

Studio Dance

On Friday evening, May 7, the ball room dancing class which has been under the direction of June Delight since last October held its closing party, with assistant hostesses Mrs. Florence Silva and Mrs. Frank De Amaral. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served, and one of the features of the evening was competition in the prize dances. Shirley Sousa and Dick Cox, Lou Frost and Sheila O'Brien won as jitterbugs. Marion Perkins and Frankie De Amaral won first prize for the waltz, with Margaret Stark and Don Cummings taking second place. Patsy Canoles and Bobbie Brown won first place in the polka. Others attending the party were: Jeanette Reel, Carmelita Fortier, Susan Evelath, Mary Ann Michael, Beverly Dowgiallo, Marilyn Draper, June Delight Canoles, Bob Barry, Bill Curtis, Louis and John Rudolph and Bob Burgess.

Pre-Flight Recreation Plans

The new Pre-Flight recreation center at the Mission Ranch club continues to prove popular with the cadets and their local hostesses. Because the cadets themselves have expressed their preference for dancing with girls in pretty dresses rather than in slacks and shorts, Mrs. Phil K. Gordon, whose interest made possible this recreation project, has passed on the word to the young hostesses.

In cooperation with a program of Sunday entertainment which is being inaugurated at the Pre-Flight school, the recreation center will be open from now on only on Saturdays from 2 to 7. On Saturday, May 15, music will be furnished by the Pre-Flight orchestra as an extra feature, and on May 23, the graduation dance for the Second Battalion is to be held in the barn.

Fred Mylar Instructs

Assistant postmaster Fred Mylar, head of the ambulance and disaster unit of the Carmel Firemen, was host to a full attendance of Carmel First Aiders on Wednesday, May 12 in the sumptuous club room of the Carmel firehouse. Mrs. Pat Hudgins was in charge of the meeting, at which Miss Helen Heavy gave an outline of the new Civilian Defense set up, explaining what share would be carried by the First Aid group.

A welcoming speech followed by Mr. Mylar, after which he explained the functions of the fire department in case of disaster and gave a demonstration of the rescue car, the ambulance and its equipment, stressing the fact that the Carmel firehouse is the number one First Aid station, with a 24-hour a day service maintained. The second station is the Church of the Wayfarer.

The next meeting of First Aiders will be held on June 9.

Birthday Dinner Dance

The Carmel Woods home of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Patterson was the scene of gay festivities last Saturday evening, May 8, when their niece, Shirley Sousa, celebrated her twelfth birthday with a dinner dance for thirty-two guests. Toland Doud and his room mate at Menlo Junior College, Johnny Elizalde, journeyed to Carmel over the past weekend in order to be hosts for a Mother's Day dinner on Sunday evening at the Mission Ranch Club, entertaining as their guests Mrs. Marie Spreckels Elizalde and Mr. and Mrs. James B. This makes three litte Sherertz's now, since the new twins have a 16-months'-old sister, Nancy.

Schoeningers Return

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schoeninger are back in their Carmel Point home after a month's absence, during which they visited their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Corazzo (Gretchen), and many of their old friends in Chicago and spent time with their son, Joseph, Jr., in Shreveport. They found Gretchen hard at work on her sculpturing, and Joe looking very well and happy in his public relations work for the U. S. army. They report that Barksdale Field, where Joe is stationed, is one of the loveliest in the country, more like a college campus than a fort.

First Citizenship Graduation from Adult School

The first "graduate" of this year's citizenship class in the Adult school, Mr. D. F. Rayne of Carmel Valley, successfully met the requirements for citizenship in the naturalization court at Salinas on May 4. Mr. Rayne has been one of the most regular and valuable members of the citizenship class during the year, and he gives generous credit to the instruction for his success in the examination.

Since the next examination comes in the fall, the citizenship class will take a recess until September.

Captain W. E. Viljoen, instructor in navigation, has been called upon for additional duty at Fort Ord, where he also teaches navigation, and is compelled to discontinue his Tuesday evening class at the Sunset school; however, the Thursday evening class continues.

Mrs. Hilgers Gives Demonstration on Vegetable Drying

In the interest of the anti-botulism campaign now in process in the county, Mrs. Eleanor Hilgers, the former Eleanor King, at one time home economics teacher at the Monterey high school, put on a demonstration of the methods of dehydrating vegetables at the Sunset school Wednesday morning.

She brought with her dehydrating equipment, told how the home canner can make her own and explained the dehydrating process, pointing out its safety advantages as a means of preserving garden products, over the canning process.

She emphasized that canning non-acid fruits and vegetables by any other method than use of the pressure cooker is unsafe, and then care must be taken that the equipment is in order and the proper method followed. The dehydrating process is simple, relatively inexpensive and safe.

She brought with her specimens of dehydrated vegetables and some home made cheese, explaining the process of making cheese.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The graduating class of Carmel High school will hold its annual senior luncheon in the green room of the La Playa Hotel Friday, May 14. The luncheon will take place during the noon hour and will continue through fifth period.

Guests will include Dr. and Mrs. Sisson, Mr. Getsinger, and Mrs. Phyllis Walker.

The speakers who will address the seniors are: Dr. Sisson and Mr. Getsinger.—Helen Passadori.

Excerpts from Mr. Craig's Letters

"Today we had our last comprehensive examinations in preparation for leaving here. According to my new orders, I am in for some exciting duty in about two months more, for I am now headed for specific training and salt water. I thought I knew what students felt as June graduation rolled around, but now I know I was only getting the backwash of their emotions. I am about to shove off myself, and the sooner the better. Even the most expert instruction cannot substitute for experience.

"This experience in the student's rank again has certainly given me some ideas on good and mediocre and downright poor teaching methods. If, and when, I put on my teaching uniform again, I am going to concentrate on course content and more content and a thorough organization of material.

"How are all my friends among the students? I suppose many of the familiar faces are gone now, but I hope that when this is over we will meet again, and take up where we left off.

"I especialy miss John Wood and Bill Christierson. You know, I suppose, that John and I were planning to walk some 500 miles through the hinterland of Mexico this summer. It would have been a wonderful adventure, and I am still determined to make that trip, come hell or high water, if I come through with a whole skin.

"We are sitting around tonight light-hearted and free from study. The air is blue with clouds of cigar and pipe smoke and from other open windows (it's warm tonight) come songs and bursts of laughter to rival ours.

Please give my best regards to all my friends on the faculty and among the students."

Donald M. Craig,
Lieut. (j.g.) U.S.N.R.

JUNIOR SENIOR PROM

As one of the most successful activities of the school year, the Junior-Senior Prom will head the list. A great deal of thanks is due to Mr. Getsinger for making the Prom possible at the High school cafeteria.

The decorations were beautiful and the cafeteria was magically transformed into a garden with white arbors, ivy, and grassy walks. Orchids to Barbara Bolin, Ellen Mary Chynoweth and Vivian Ohm who gave all their time to decorating the cafeteria.

The refreshments were there but in typical male fashion, the boys forgot to clean up the kitchen.

Some of the couples present were Essen Mary Chynoweth and Bill Dougherty, Barbara Bolin and John Culin, Lynne Clark and Willard Hillyer, Nancy Fitzhugh and Bill Monroe, Joy Sylvester and Jim Handley, Pamela Dormody and Martin Irwin, Andrea Del Monte and Bob Holm, Vivian Ohm and Coxy Campbell, Peggy Garguilo and Bill McKenzie, Martina Tait and Elwood Sankey, Beverly Leidig and Russell Bohlke, Margery Wermouth and Jim Clark, Dorothy Ottmar and Bill Plein, Alicia Orcutt and Emile Passailaigue, Elizabeth Stanley and John Todd, Merilyn Moore and Bill Goss, Virginia Shone and Dan Gilliland, and many others. The sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Getsinger, Mr. and Mrs. Schuttish and Miss Sheldon.

Chairman of Decoration Committee, Barbara Bolin; Chairman of Refreshments Committee, Sandy Hook; Chairman of Clean-up Committee, John Graham. — Ann McElroy.

TRACK MEET

Last Saturday, May 8, a track meet was held at the Monterey high school, and all high schools from Carmel to Hollister were invited by Harold Youngman, Monterey's coach, to participate in the meet.

Representatives from Carmel High placed in almost every event.

This is the outcome: Pacific Grove took first place in the mile, Monterey took second and Bill Goss of Carmel took third place. Alan Avelson of Carmel took first place in the 440 by a good 10 yards. The 220 was won by Pacific Grove, and Ken Kenner of Carmel placed second.

Three contestants tied for first place in the high jump, which was 5 feet, 6 inches. The winners were from Santa Cruz, Monterey and John Culin of Carmel. Santa Cruz also placed first in the broad jump, and Emile Passailaigue of Carmel took second by jumping 17 feet, 11 inches.

The lightweight shot was thrown 49 feet by Kent Whitcomb of Carmel, who won first place. Pacific Grove scored second and Emile Passailaigue, also from Carmel took third place. Then in the heavyweight shot, Monterey took first place, Santa Cruz took second, and Roy Parsons of Carmel, won third place.

In the discus, Dale Vandervort scored a victory for Carmel by throwing it 99 feet and 3 inches, which won first place.

The boys who scored first in all events, will go to Stanford to enter the North Section Track Meet.

Soldier Writes Appreciation of Carmel USO

Sgt. Earl Bourgeois, son of Mrs. J. P. Bourgeois of Gonzales, Louisiana, was so appreciative of the efforts of the Carmel USO to dispel homesickness on Mother's Day—(the local organization entertained with a picnic at La Playa Ranch) that he presented one of the senior hostesses with the following letter:

"I wish to thank all the ladies here at the Carmel USO for the swell way I was treated when I visited this club. I am sure that if there were more clubs like this one that life in the Army would be much more pleasant.

"It's a club like this one that make men in the armed forces feel that their task isn't as bad as they think it is."

New Show Opens At First Theater

Tonight at 8:15 in the First Theater, Monterey, the opening curtain will draw on the Troupers of the Gold Coast new show, "The Fatal Wedding." Irene Alexander has directed the melodrama, and prediction of those who have seen some of the rehearsals is that "The Fatal Wedding" bids fair to top "Rags to Riches," which closed last week after a most successful run.

The production will introduce new Troupers first in the person of Ruth Bizzini, who plays the leading role of Mabel, the harrowed and anguish-ridden wife, who loves her husband faithfully and well through all the infamy heaped upon her charges of infidelity and sufferings in a crowded tenement with "poor little Willie, so sick on the cot." Ruth has appeared but once formerly, in the minor role of maid.

Charles Conrad of the Coast Guard plays his first big part at the First Theater, enacting the "heavy," Clyde Ormond, a gambler. Conrad has had considerable stage experience. Hiss bass voice will be heard in the olio in a heart - rending ballad entitled "Too Late."

A whole family of talent has joined the Troupers and will make its debut tonight. Irven Ross will play O'Reilly, a policeman; Verda Ross, his wife, plays Delia, the Irish maid, and Patsy Ross will be seen in the olio finale. Other Troupers to make their first appearance on the Theater melodrama boards are Mary Lou Riordan, Marlene Waters, Bobby Brown, (who has often danced in the olio in the "Bobby and Marian" act), Bonnie, Mimi and Cheri Rookledge.

Veteran Troupers appearing in major roles are Dan and Louise Welty, Jim Jensen and Franklin Dixon. Louise will be seen for the first time as the villainess, the jealous, terrifying Lola, who stops at nothing to gain her evil end. Louise is also director of the olio, and has originated and trained the dance routines.

Dan Welty will M.C. the show, play Horace, wealthy merchant of San Francisco, and be seen in several of the twelve olio acts.

Rhoda Johnson has excelled herself in the ravishing costumes, and Franklin Dixon has designed and executed the sets. Bill France will be at his usual post, "on" the curtain and the lights.

Bach Festival Called Off for the Duration

it "must go on." With its postponement will come an acute disappointment not only for Carmel but for the conductor, Gastone Usigli; for Ruth Terry Koechig, Russell Horton, Alice Mock, Julian Lieban and the other soloists who have come again and again; and for Ralph Linsley in Africa, or Jules Salkin somewhere in the Pacific. All together will wait for that date in the future when the Ninth Annual Carmel Bach Festival will be consummated, transcending all previous and intervening years with its accomplishment.

Meanwhile, the management gratefully thanks all the friends of the Festival who have been so willing to help and be a part of its success.

Soil Depletion, Tariffs, Subjects At Demo Club Meet

The Women's Democratic club met Friday, May 7, at the home of Mrs. Paul Low on Ridgewood Road, Miss Clara Kellogg, the president, presiding. The program was opened by Mrs. H. W. Stuart who read and commented on articles of interest in recent magazines and important editorials in the nation's press. Among them were a number of articles highly complimentary to Mr. George Outland, the congressman from this district.

Mrs. Perry Newberry gave an informative talk on the relation of health to the farm and soil, pointing out that depleted soil results in lower food value. An example was shown in one million out of two million men being rejected by the army because of faulty teeth. The government is taking active steps to remedy this situation with projects such as the T.V.A.

Dr. Olive Swezey spoke on Reciprocal Trade Treaties. She gave a history of tariffs and their results, saying that if we want bigger and better wars, tariffs will give them to us.

The next meeting will be held at the library of the Sunset school in July.

Crime a Social Disease

criminal cases fall within this age span. Under the new authority all cases that go to court and involve more than 90 day's penalty will have to be considered before the Youth Authority before a plan of treatment will be undertaken. Discarding the old philosophy of considering only the crime and dealing out punishment in accordance with its magnitude, the Authority will consider the criminal.

An examination into the motive behind his action, his past record, the personality and character of the individual, his mental and physical condition, will determine whether efforts should be made for rehabilitation or whether he should be placed in permanent confinement for the protection of society.

He was introduced by Mrs. Daniel Yount of Pacific Grove, for a number of years chief probation officer of Butte County.
